

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method to monitor the quality of distributed multimedia content over a network is disclosed. A digital watermark is embedded into the multimedia content. Various monitoring clients are disbursed over the network. The monitoring clients receive the 5 multimedia content and examine the digital watermark. Statistical information relating to the degradation of the content is then gathered by an analysis of the watermark.